Let us introduce you our new project which main priority is the creation and dissemination of innovative educational materials for youth workers to prevent gender unequal opportunities in the labor market. Project Anchors for the future brings international experiences how to learn young women to not subject to stereotypes, acquire skills which they will need in their future lives - awareness of their own sources, ability to ask for help, search for allies, critical thinking, accepting decisions, right to make mistakes or apartment in accordance with own imperfection.

Created materials are to support girls and young women (13-21 years old) in acquiring and developing competences that will help them feel safe in making new decisions and facing challenges (anchoring), based on the "serious games" methodology. Serious games are games whose primary purpose is not just entertainment. They help players acquire, develop and consolidate specific skills and solve problems. To increase the employability of girls and the chance for a good, dignified life in the community, we will primarily focus on competences: an entrepreneurial approach, critical thinking and creativity.
