

Here we are! After two long years, we are at the end of our project “Anchors for the Future”. After many working days with girls, young women, youth workers, teachers, educators, stakeholders and many many testers of the game. Our team from the Czech Republic, Spain, Portugal and Poland have prepared helpful tools. We want to help girls to understand that they live in some type of framework that they can change if they wish to. Tools we have created will provide girls reinforcement or development of crucial competencies and skills in adulthood and the labour market. What skills? Check below our tools such as “Sparks”, the game “Anchors” and the educational platform.

The final transnational meeting was held in Valencia, Spain with the partners from Spain, Portugal, Poland, and the Czech Republic to discuss what was successful during the executions of the activities and what are the learned lessons to improve for the future projects. One of the most important topics was how to make the usage of the educational tools more sustainable after the finishing of the project. Moreover, creating a brainstorming for creating ideas for future cooperation between the partners. Last but not least, Celebration! the closing of the project.

PADLET

The padlet we have created is an easy and interational platform that you can access to learn and improve your knowledge about how to work with youth in the field of gender equality. There you can find videos, articles, games and examples of best practices around the world. Check it out and help us to spark the difference!.

SPARKS

Find out how girls from Czech Republic, Poland, Portugal and Spain understand the ability to gain allies, critical thinking, the right to make mistakes, the ability to ask for help, a sense of control, own decision-making skills and self-awareness. Those competencies are crucial in adult life and the labor market. You can use “Sparks” for the discussion after the game and learn the girls point of view.
